Reichstag Meets To Choose A Dictator For Next Four Years

Chancellor Adolf Hitler Expected To Be Dictator As Reichstag Eliminates Itself—President Von Hindenburg Speaks.

Potsdam, Germany, March 21 (AP).—The New German Reichstag, which is expected to legalize a four-year dictatorship under Chancellor Adolf Hitler and quickly eliminate itself, held its first meeting today in the former seat of the Hohenzollerns.

A solemn opening ceremony in the historic Garrison Church began with an address by President Von Hindenburg. It was the first address he ever made to the national legislature.

"The elections of March 5 have shown a clear majority for the newly formed government of national concentration," he said.

"Weighty and manifold duties await you. I know the chancellor and cabinet face with determination the difficult problems to be solved at home and abroad. I hope the new members of the new Reichstag place themselves loyally behind the government."

"The place where we stand recalls old Prussia which became great through fear of God, devotion to duty, unflinching courage, and self-denying patriotism," said the former field marshal who served two emperors in arms.

Chancellor Hitler's response and a military parade reviewed by President Von Hindenburg, the Reichstag was to assemble in the Kroll Opera House in Berlin at 5 p. m. for its first business meeting. The opera house is opposite the Reichstag building which was mysteriously burned a few days before the elections and which is now under repair.

The enabling act to give Hitler dictatorial powers until April 1, 1937, would empower his government to make laws even conflicting with the constitution. It would remove control of the Reichstag and the Reichsrat, the state's council which assents to all bills introduced in the former body, over such legislation.

Sole responsibility for foreign treaties would rest also with the government, taking that function from the Reichstag and Reichsrat.

WOULD MAKE SARATOGA SPRINGS WORLD FAMOUS

Albany, N. Y., March 21 (AP).—An appropriation of $1,500,000 to carry out the development of Saratoga Springs as a health resort comparable to the European Spas, in accordance with the recommendations of the Baruch Commission named by President Roosevelt while he was governor, was requested of the New York state legislature today.

Four specific projects urged as part of the development include erection of a sanitarium, $250,000; construction of covered walks and promenades for patients suffering from heart ailments, $250,000; erection of a new bath house for cardiac patients, $350,000, and a new bottling plant to be used in the sale and distribution of the Saratoga waters which the state now owns and controls, $300,000.

The recommendations were made in a report submitted to the legislature last night by the Saratoga Springs Commission, headed by Pierrepoint B. Noyes.

A three-fold scientific development was also recommended, including creation of diagnostic clinics, a related study of the chemical and curative properties of the Saratoga waters and a study of the geology of Saratoga and of the physical properties of the water.

Hudson, N. Y., March 21 (AP).—The trial of Frank Fredericko, who was charged with the murder of Paul "Poke" Wright, prizefighter, continued today with the state hoping to prove that Wright was killed by a bullet from the "stovepipe revolver."

Ernest Thomas of Hudson, who moved into Fredericko's house soon after the latter was arrested, testified yesterday that he found a .32 calibre revolver tucked away in a section of stovepipe in the attic.

Wright was slain August 11, 1932, after a cottage party at Kinderhook Lake at which Wright and Fredericko were guests. One witness has said the two men fought shortly before Wright was found dying of a bullet wound in the road outside.

KINGSTON TRADES TWO AGENTS WITH STRACTIONS

Syracuse, N. Y., March 21 (AP).—A general shift in all prohibition agents was in effect today in New York state.

Thirty-one agents formerly working in New York city were transferred to upstate New York, while eight others were placed under jurisdiction of Colonel Jefferson Davis, deputy administrator, for roving assignments between Albany, Utica, Binghamton, Syracuse and Malone.

Kingston and Syracuse traded two agents.

New Presidential Message Promises Jobs To 250,000

Washington, March 21 (AP).—President Roosevelt recommended to Congress today the creation of a "civilian conservation corps" to give jobs in the forests.

Again writing concisely, he addressed his fifth major proposal to the legislators with a promise of putting 250,000 men to work "by early summer," if given authority to proceed within two weeks.

The President also outlined suggestions for "grants to states for relief work" and a broad program of public construction.

He asked establishment of the office of Federal Relief Administrator to direct the machinery for coordination of his relief plans.

He said he would submit soon to Congress recommendations to carry out the direct relief work and the public construction plan.

Funds are available for relief until May, he said, necessitating further appropriations before that time.

The Text

The presidential text follows:

To the Congress:

It is essential to our recovery program that measures immediately be enacted aimed at unemployment relief. A direct attack in this problem suggests three types of legislation.

The first is the enrollment of workers now by the Federal government for such public employment as can be quickly started and will not interfere with the demand for or the proper standards of normal employment.

The second is grants to states for relief work.

The third extends to a broad public works labor creating program. With reference to the latter I am now studying the many projects suggested and the financial questions involved. I shall make recommendations to the Congress presently.

In regard to grants to states for relief work, I advise you that the remainder of the Appropriation Act of last year will last until May. Therefore, and because a continuance of federal aid is still a definite necessity for many states, a further appropriation must be made before the end of this special session.

Plans Machinery

I find a clear need for some simple federal machinery to coordinate and check these grants of aid. I am, therefore, asking that you establish the office of federal relief administrator, whose duty it will be to see requests for grants and to check the efficiency and wisdom of their use.

The first of these measures which I have enumerated, however, can and should be immediately enacted. I propose to create a civilian conservation corps to be used in simple work, not interfering with normal employment, and confining itself to forestry, the prevention of soil erosion, flood control and similar projects.

I call your attention to the fact that this type of work is of definite practical value, not only through the prevention of great present financial loss, but also as a means of creating future national wealth. This is brought home by the news we are receiving today of vast damage caused by floods on the Ohio and other rivers.

Control and direction of such work can be carried on by existing machinery of the Departments of Labor, Agriculture, War and Interior.

Work by Early Summer

I estimate that 250,000 men can be given temporary employment by early summer if you give me authority to proceed within the next two weeks.

I ask no new funds at this time. The use of unobligated funds, now appropriated for public works, will be sufficient for several months.

This enterprise is an established part of our national policy. It will conserve our precious natural resources. It will pay dividends to the present and future generations. It will make improvements in national and state domains which have been largely forgotten in the past few years of industrial development.

More important, however, than the material gains will be the moral and spiritual value of such work. The overwhelming majority of unemployed Americans, who are now walking the streets and receiving private or public relief, would infinitely prefer to work. We can take a vast army of these unemployed out into healthful surroundings.

We can eliminate to some extent at least the threat that enforced idleness brings to spiritual and moral stability. It is not a panacea for all the unemployment but it is an essential step in this emergency. I ask its adoption.

Sick Juror Causes Trial Difficulties

More difficulties faced Judge Russell this morning in supreme court when Juror No. 7, Earl Hook of Wauwasca appeared in court ill. After the day calendar had been called Judge Russell called the attorneys in the case on trial to the bench to explain that Mr. Hook was ill. There was a dislike to continuing the case on trial with eleven jurors and Mr. Hook was called to the bench and talked with the court and attorneys.

He expressed a desire to visit his physician. While talking to the court he suddenly collapsed and was taken from the court room by officers who went to his assistance. Judge Russell directed Sheriff Sax to have an officer accompany the ill man to a physician.

It was stipulated that the case go on with eleven jurors. The action on trial is the Jalkow-Hittleman alleged false arrest action.

A stipulation was entered into in No. 17, Joseph Manolescu against John J. Clark, a negligence action that the complaint be dismissed without costs. A. J. Cook appeared for plaintiff and George Rusk for defendant.

A settlement was also announced in No. 20, Robert F. Greenwald against Lewis S. Miller and another, a negligence action. A. J. Cook appeared for plaintiff and Turner & Fitzpatrick for defendant.

The day calendar is: Nos. 82 on trial, 33, 36, 18, 12, 425 and 426, 37, 54, 69, 80 and 81, 82, 83, 84, 13, 4, 4.

Thunder Shower Is Greeting of Spring

According to the almanac spring arrived Monday at 8:43 p. m., and along with the official arrival of spring came the first thunder storm of 1934. Following a steady rain all day Monday, at about 4 o'clock this morning there was a brilliant display of lightning and several heavy rumbles of thunder. Again at about 8 o'clock this morning this locality was visited by a thunder storm, accompanied by a heavy downpour of rain. Fair and cooler weather is predicted for Wednesday.

SUPERVISOR LAMOREE MADE SAUGERTIES BANK DIRECTOR

Supervisor Henry A. Lamoree has been elected a bank director of the First National Bank and Trust Company of Saugerties, at a meeting of the directors held on Saturday afternoon. Supervisor Lamoree's election to the bank's directorate fills the vacancy caused by the expiration of the term of Henry Faller of Glisco.

Seyere Cold Adds To Flood Hazards

Cincinnati, O., March 21 (AP).—Yellow flood waters continued today to wreak destruction up and down the Ohio Valley, while thousands of refugees faced new distress in freezing temperatures.

Snow fell in western Kentucky as the mercury dropped below 32 degrees and furies were expected in southwestern Ohio. Relief agencies moved to provide warmth for homeless families driven to the shelter of tents and barns.

Meanwhile, streams in southern Indiana overflowed from heavy rains and helped swell the Ohio, already far out of its banks and inundating thousands of acres in city and country with unestimated damage. At least nine persons have lost their lives.

Already suffering from its worst flood in 20 years, Wheeling, W. Va., was expecting a fresh inundation, and Cincinnati was bulwarking a levee to prevent the waters from sweeping over the lower east end of the city. Portsmouth, O., continued efforts to reinforce a wall protecting the city.

National Guardsmen were called to Portsmouth, Batavia and Manchester, O. Several feet of water covered the business district of Manchester. Families were driven out of their homes from Huntington, W. Va., to Evansville, Ind., as the Ohio continued to rise. The angry waters rushed toward Cairo, Ill., and the Mississippi, whose residents were preparing for flood stage.

Residents of the harassed towns along the Ohio River drew some encouragement from the prediction of colder weather, for they believed this would stem the heavy rains which have been sending the big steamboat artery and its tributaries out of their banks.

The Ohio was nearing its expected crest of 64 feet at Cincinnati, the rise having dropped to a twentieth of a foot an hour. The river stood at 63.1 feet, 11.1 above flood stage. Of the hundreds of cities along the Ohio, the little towns of New Richmond and Ripley, O., perhaps were hardest hit. The water was 10 feet deep in some places at New Richmond. Food was being brought in by boats. Of the 20 business houses in Ripley, only two grocery stores were free from water.

No Arrests Here

The rainstorm of Monday evidently kept things quiet in Kingston for the police did not find it necessary to make an arrest. There were no cases in police court today.

Treasury Receipts

Washington, March 21 (AP).—Treasury receipts for March 18 were $24,843,575.91; expenditures $25,190,861.18; balance $453,163,262.56. Customs duties for 18 days of March were $5,458,222.64.

State Abandons Hope Of Having Beer When U. S. Bill Is Effective

New York State Will Not Be Ready For Beer Until Late Later Than April 6 When Federal Beer Bill Is To Become Effective.

State Capitol, Albany, N. Y., March 21 (AP).—New York state today abandoned hope of setting up beer control machinery by the time the federal beer bill becomes effective April 6 or thereabouts.

The whole muddled beer and liquor control situation was dumped into the lap of the state's new governor, Herbert H. Lehman, who smilingly took over the responsibility for drawing up control measures that will be satisfactory to all sides.

At the same time the executive made it known that he does not believe that the state can begin collecting revenue from the sale of beer for some time.

Office space must be found in Albany and in other cities for whatever control board is set up, license application blanks and the licenses themselves must be printed and other physical details attended to before the state can say it is ready to hear from persons wishing to sell beer.

Aside from this, there is a sharp disagreement between the governor and some of the legislators, and between the legislators themselves, over details of the several beer control plans under consideration. Governor Lehman's Commission has called for a state board and county boards as well, but some Democrats say this would not keep control out of politics. Senator John J. Dinnick of New York, a majority leader, has prepared a bill calling for a three headed excise department within the State Tax Department. This has met some objection from lawyers, on the ground that the appointment of such a body by the governor, as the bill proposes, would be equivalent to setting up a new state department, prohibited by the constitution.

SON WOUNDS FATHER WITH PISTOL IN FIGHT

Columbus, O., March 21 (AP).—Dr. F. A. Lambert, nationally known football official and members of the advisory council of the National players committee, was shot and probably fatally wounded by his son, Samuel, 17, early today during a family quarrel.

At a hospital, where Dr. Lambert underwent an emergency operation, he absolved his son from all blame. Young Lambert, described the shooting as accidental. He said he had been called by Mrs. Lambert, who told him his father had choked her and twisted her arm. Then, the youth said, his weapon was discharged accidentally.

Dr. Lambert's condition was described by physicians as "extremely serious." The bulletin grazed his lung and pierced his liver.

Dr. Lambert is secretary-treasurer of the Columbus Serum Co., and has written several books concerning football rules.

RULES DEATH DUE TO TEMPORARY INSANITY

Rochester, N. Y., March 21 (AP).—Coroner David H. Atwater has ruled that Erik Baumann, 27-year-old gymnasium instructor whose body was found queerly trussed in ropes, committed suicide "while temporarily insane."

The coroner last night reversed his original verdict in which he decided that "a person or persons unknown" tied the strange loops about Baumann's neck and feet, causing him to strangle to death.

Baumann's body, in a sleeping bag, was found in a cramped position on the bed in his room at the Y. M. C. A. one day last week. The door was locked and the key was on a table in the room.

HEARING ADJOURNED IN WALKER DIVORCE CASE

Miami, Fla., March 21 (AP).—Master in Chancery T. J. Dowdell adjourned hearing of Mrs. Janet Allen Walker's divorce action today after she had testified the former New York mayor had deserted her despite her efforts at a reconciliation.

Benjamin Cohen, attorney for Mr. Walker, who is spending a vacation at Cannes, France, said Mr. Walker intended to introduce no witnesses. Master Dowdell said he expected to make his recommendations to circuit court tomorrow, in accordance with Florida law.

House Votes Passage Of 3.2 Beer; Roosevelt May Sign It Wednesday

Will Fight for Beer Business on Border

Nogales, Sonora, Mexico, March 21 (AP).—A battle of beer is brewing on the border.

Sonora brewing interests have solicited the cooperation of Gov. Rudolph Elias Calles to combat competition of legalized beer in the United States. Information here today was that Calles will introduce a tax reduction plan in a campaign to undersell the American product.

Beer brewed in Sonora is of higher alcohol content than the beverage to be legalized in the United States.

"Brewing interests of Mexico are not going to give up the beer business on the border without a fight," said Charles Kieselbach, brewing company official, "and when we say fight, we mean exactly that."

Governor Calles has informed brewing interests that the Sonora government will cooperate to retain the beer trade on this side of the international line. This means that taxes will be lowered for saloons and cabarets, and also for beer.

Saloon operators were discussing plans to become effective jointly with the proposed tax reductions, that will reduce the price of hard liquors in Sonora and further counteract the competition of 3.2 percent beer from the United States, along with a reduction of "over the bar" beer prices.

"Beer will sell at 5 cents a glass," said Kieselbach. "Five cents American money now equals 15 centavos Mexican money. This price will yield a profit."

Beer purchased by tourists in Nogales, Sonora, for a long time sold at 15 cents a glass, or two glasses for 25 cents.

The United States beer, Kieselbach declared, "in our opinion will not be acceptable to beer drinkers. The alcoholic content of Sonora beer is four per cent."

Sonora saloons now pay high taxes to the government for licenses to operate. In addition to the beer manufacturers' tax.

Government officials indicated that besides the proposed tax reductions, steps would be taken to open the border to visitors from the United States with less "red tape" involved in immigration regulations, and that plans were being discussed to do away with the present requirement of bond by foreigners traveling in the state in their own automobiles.

ADVERTISERS SEE SIGNS FOR ADDITIONAL SPACE

Syracuse, N. Y., March 21 (AP).—Signs are evident that advertisers are calling for more newspaper space since the bank holiday, delegates to a joint meeting of the advertising bureau of the New York state dailies and the advertising clinic of the Empire State School of Printing have been told.

In discussions conducted by Jack R. Paul of Gloversville, and Don Johnson of Ithaca, respective heads of the organizations, the delegates heard yesterday that advertising has increased since the holiday.

"Definite signs" were reported that advertising will continue at a higher level.

INCREASES WAGES AND PRICE OF ITS PRODUCTS

A 10 per cent increase in wages of mill hands was announced yesterday by the Lone Star Cement Co., New York, Inc. At the same time the company increased the price of its cement 10 per cent.

The company, whose main offices are in Albany, operates a plant at Hudson where about 340 employees are affected by the increase.

The necessity for increasing the purchasing power of labor to bring about improved business conditions was cited by D. P. Cooper, vice president, as a reason for the increase yesterday.

Beer Situation in The Different States

(By The Associated Press)

State capitals report that:

There are at least 11 states in which beer can be sold as soon as the Federal government legalizes it, which will be 15 days after President Roosevelt's signature to the 3.2 per cent bill.

In others a varied situation exists. In some beer can be sold after a specified time; in some it can be sold in certain localities; in others proposed action to license or regulate the beverage is pending, in still others—at least 10 states—neither has there been repeal of prohibition laws nor is official action pending toward licensing beer.

The 14 states in which beer can be sold immediately after United States legalization are: Arizona, California, Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Missouri, Montana, Nevada, New Jersey, New York, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Washington and Wisconsin.

In North Dakota beer can be sold after July 1, in West Virginia after June 9, and in Wyoming after May 18, contingent on legalization by the Federal government. Maryland and Delaware laws permit sale in certain parts of the states. Some states have repealed their prohibition laws, but will not permit beer sales until control laws have been passed. In others that have passed repealer, beer can be sold without such control legislation. Many states have licensing or control proposals pending.

Trial Of British Officer Continues

London, March 21 (AP).—An indication that the third degree had been applied to Lieut. Norman Baillie-Stewart when army officials at Aldershot began an investigation of his alleged wrongful acts was put forth by his counsel in the course of today's session of the young officer's court martial.

Lieut. Baillie-Stewart, an officer of the Seaforth Highlanders, is being tried on charges of betraying army secrets to a foreign agent.

Lieut. Col. F. N. Syms, who conducted this preliminary questioning of the accused officer, denied on the witness stand, however, that there was anything in the nature of a third degree in the course of this questioning, or even that Lieut. Baillie-Stewart was cross-examined.

Lieut. Col. Syms was cross-examined by defense counsel in reference to the accused officer's explanation that £90 he had admitted having received from Berlin was in connection with a liaison he had with a young woman in that city.

He replied that he did not believe the explanation, "because I thought he was putting me off with this story simply to gain time." He added that he had been unable to learn any details so the story could be checked. The court room was cleared early in the afternoon and the examination of further witnesses continued in camera.

New Order Further Restricts Local Bank

In compliance with a general order from the secretary of the treasury reeking the limited banking business allowed under the banking holiday, the National Union County Bank and Trust Company, in common with other banks allowed to do a limited business, today is only making change and cashing checks on number two accounts (accounts authorized by the treasury department to be held separate from other funds and payable upon demand). No deposits are being accepted in these new accounts at the present time.

Vice President LeRoy F. Port and Rodney B. Osterhout, director in the institution, are understood to be in New York city today where they are negotiating concerning the bank, and it is expected a definite statement will be forthcoming on Wednesday concerning future plans for the institution.

Foley Appointed

Albany, N. Y., March 21 (AP).—The appointment of Samuel J. Foley as district attorney of Bronx county was announced today by Governor Lehman.

Washington, March 21 (AP).—

The house of representatives voted final passage of the 3.2 beer and wine bill today, but senate adjournment before the vote took place made it impossible to send the legislation to the White House for President Roosevelt to sign it before midnight.

There was no record vote in the house, only a short speech against the bill by Representative Blanton (D., Tex.), preceding the shouts of "aye."

Since the vice-president has to sign the bill while the senate is in session, it can not go to the president before tomorrow. Then fifteen days must elapse after he signs it before sale can be begun in states not having restrictions against it.

It was a question among officials whether, if the president signs the act into law by noon tomorrow, April sixth or seventh will be the first sale day.

The conference report providing for wine of the same alcoholic content weight as beer, was approved yesterday by the senate.

The measure climaxes a thirteen year old fight between congressional wets and dries, with the former forces victorious for the second time this year. Late in the last session, congress voted to submit repeal of the Eighteenth amendment.

Action on the report came in the house shortly after it was received from the senate. Debate was limited to an hour. Representative Calles of New York, assistant Democratic leader, sought approval without a roll call vote.

Fifteen days after Mr. Roosevelt affixes his signature, it will be legal to manufacture, sell and buy beer in states that do not forbid it. That would be April 6, if the President signs Wednesday as he is expected to do.

The measure, estimated to bring in from $125,000,000 to $150,000,000 in federal revenue through a levy of $5 a barrel, liberalizes the Volstead law, passed by Congress in October, 1919, over President Wilson's veto, to exempt beer, ale, porter, stout and other malt beverages and wine, which do not contain more than 3.2 per cent alcohol by weight.

The national conference of organizations supporting the Eighteenth Amendment last night, made public a letter sent to President Roosevelt in which it was contended that he could not sign the bill without violating the constitution.

"The bill was not designed as a measure for prohibition enforcement but to raise revenue," the letter signed by F. Scott McBride, general superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, and other organized prohibition leaders, said.

Representative Sabath, (D., Ill.), planned to introduce today a joint resolution requesting the President to pardon all persons convicted and now serving jail sentences for selling or manufacturing beer. A number of similar bills already have been introduced.

Whirlwind Courtship.

Miss Niday, twenty years old, met Smith in Windsor, Ont., several months ago. He told her he was H. E. Foster, a real estate broker, and when she returned to Chicago to her job in a night club he followed. A whirlwind courtship ensued, but Miss Niday was reluctant to marry, because back in Galesburg her elderly parents were depending upon her for their support.

Then "Foster" disappeared, after sending the girl a telegram that he had been called to California on business, but he did not mention that the business consisted of trying to explain to a prison board why he had not reported regularly to the parole officer after serving part of a six-year sentence in San Quentin. Nor did he tell her that this trip was being made in handcuffs following his arrest in Chicago.

Two weeks later he telegraphed her again, that he was starting east and wanted her to meet him in Kansas City. Again he omitted to tell her the rest—that he had obtained the money to rejoin her by holding up the Berkeley bank after the parole board had listened to his plea to be permitted to retain his freedom.

All that Miss Niday did know was that she wanted most eagerly to see him again and that if he repeated his proposal she would say "yes" this time. They met in Kansas City, he did propose again and they set the day for the marriage.

The meeting was held at the Roundabout Presbyterian Church, which was beautifully decorated for the occasion, with apple blossoms and spring flowers and filled to capacity by members of the district and visitors.

Before the meeting came to order Mr. Whiting, Fredericburgh, rendered several selections on the organ, which were very much enjoyed.

The meeting was opened by R. W. Alfred Sherrer, grand marshal. The district deputy, R. W. Marguerite L. Lencke and the assistant grand lecturer, R. W. Lynn D. Wessels, were escorted to the East and introduced by R. W. Lillian B. Huhne and R. W. Mary K. Comstock, both past district deputy grand matrons of the Greene-Ulster District and members of Kingston Chapter No. 155.

They were graciously welcomed by the grand marshal and then presented to the district. R. W. Marguerite Lencke then proceeded with the opening ceremonies after which the grand conductress, R. W. May B. Johnson and associate grand conductress, R. W. Alice M. Scardfield, announced that the grand matron and grand patron now wished to officially visit the district. The grand matron and grand patron entered, being preceded by a great number of present and past grand officers who acted as their escorts and were greeted by tumultuous applause.

At the completion of the degree Worthy Mary J. Howard, matron of Clifton Chapter, presented R. W. Vincent E. Ellwood, associate grand patron, with a gift from the district.

The following grand officers were then called upon to speak: R. W. May B. Johnson, grand conductress; R. W. Alice M. Scardfield, associate grand conductress; M. W. Georgina Scardfield, grand treasurer; M. W. Annie M. Pond, grand secretary.

Each in their turn expressed their pleasure at being present and how much they enjoyed the meeting. As the meeting had to be closed before midnight, the district deputy expressed her regret that she could not call upon more members of the grand staff to speak, but she felt that the meeting would not be complete without a few words from M. W. Grace V. Merritt, "our own Grace," who then responded in a very charming manner.

Worthy Kittie Budington, matron of Kingston Chapter, approached and with well chosen words spoke feelingly of the love Kingston Chapter bears for R. W. Marguerite Lencke, district deputy, their own member, and presented her with a very beautiful basket filled with snap dragons and roses. R. W. Marguerite Lencke responded by saying that she loved her chapter and hoped the members would always feel the same toward her.

Several local members attended the lecture sponsored by the Community Garden Club held Monday evening in Newburgh Y. W. C. A. rooms. Prof. Bushney, head of landscape extension division of Cornell University, spoke on roadside planting and beautifying public grounds.

Mrs. Amelia Schoeder, who has been spending several weeks with relatives in New York city, has returned to the home of her daughter, Mrs. Edward Kaley.

Miss Lulu Clarke of Milton, a former president of the Community Garden Club, and Robert Cole of Marlborough will have charge of the club display at the International Flower Show which opened in Grand Central Palace, New York city, today. The Garden Club exhibit will be on display Wednesday, March 22.

Honey Energy-Giving Food. Honey may be roughly described as a sirup with a distinctive flavor and aroma. Several kinds of sugar are present in honey, including cane sugar, grape sugar and fruit sugar. Some dextrose is also present, as well as other substances in small amounts. Since the principal ingredient is sugar, honey is classed as an energy-giving food. One tablespoonful of it furnishes 100 calories.

Negro Kills Freak Snake With Head at Either End

Columbia, S. C.—South Carolina has a snake with two heads. This is no figment of the imagination but a reality. J. A. Crawford, director of physical education at the University of South Carolina, received it a few days ago from a negro in Edgefield county, who killed it in capturing it. The snake had a head perfectly formed at each end of its body, which was about 30 inches long.

Judge Loughran Model Justice

The Monticello Bulletin, published at Monticello, where Supreme Court Judge John T. Loughran is now holding the March term, has the following to say in regard to the manner in which the present term of court is being conducted by the Kingston judge:

Justice John T. Loughran seems to have discovered the secret of starting the supreme court on time and running it right along without a hitch.

Monday of last week he opened the March term promptly and continued until after 6 o'clock that evening, without supper, until he finished all naturalization business. Tuesday morning he took up the arson case, which had been sent to him by the order of another judge, and ran it in perfect order until the end of the week, when the jury convicted the defendant, Becker, of an attempt to commit arson in the second degree, the defendant, Zucker, having been discharged by the court earlier in the week.

Yesterday morning court opened with the first case at the top of the day calendar ready for trial, with the promise of other cases to be ready for every day of the week.

Justice Loughran has never hesitated to sacrifice his own comfort to the business of the court. He is the soul of courtesy in his discussions with the attorneys. His keen, broad knowledge of the law makes him more or less independent of the attorneys in arriving at his conclusions. By his uniform kindness he inspires a like spirit in those around him, and at the same time he is working right straight ahead.

In the past year many unkind things have been said about the courts and the lawyers by newspapers which enlarge on criticisms from the bench and from others. We venture to predict that in the weeks of the rest of this month the present presiding justice will help to straighten all that out and restore the amicable relations which used to exist between the legal fraternity, the courts and the public.

Await Hearing on State Beer Bill

Albany, N. Y., March 21 (AP).—New York's plans for the control of beer apparently having temporarily reached an impasse, Governor Lehman and the Legislature were waiting today for an expression of public sentiment at the public beer bill hearing Thursday.

The legislative leaders, after a conference with Mr. Lehman, announced last night that they were leaving to him the decision as to what form the state beer control plan will take. Accordingly the regular Monday night session of the Legislature which followed their announcement brought forth no discussion of any of the beer measures.

The Legislature likewise failed to take up the Conway liquor control commission's bill for a state convention to ratify repeal of the 18th Amendment. Passage of this measure, however, was looked for today.

The governor himself said he had not fully made up his mind about the legislation he will recommend, and would withhold comment until after Thursday's hearing.

He surprised newspaper men by saying he was not committed to either the Dunningham beer bill, which permits brass rails and bars, or the Buckley bill. The latter represents the opinion of the liquor control commission, and bans facilities to be used by drinkers standing up, but permits beer gardens.

Reports from New York late last week represented the governor as having "cracked the whip" for passage of the Dunningham bill.

"There has been a perfect flood of suggestions covering proposed amendments to or changes in the liquor control commission's bill and the Dunningham bill, and some of these are worthy of close consideration," the governor said.

"I am carefully studying the entire situation and will of course be informed of what transpires at Thursday's public hearing."

General Shift Of Federal Agents

Andrew McCampbell, state prohibition administrator, in announcing a general shift of all prohibition agents throughout the state, effective immediately, declined to reveal the number of agents involved. From another source it was learned that 31 agents had been shifted from New York city to upstate territory and that eight agents had been placed under the jurisdiction of Col. Jefferson Davis, deputy administrator, for roving assignments between Albany, Utica, Binghamton, Syracuse and Malone.

Mr. McCampbell is quoted as stating that the Kingston office will not be abolished, but, on the contrary, "being a strategic point, it needs to be reinforced."

It is understood that there have been at least nine or ten transfers from the Kingston office within the past month or so, old men going out and new ones taking their places.

T. W. Dreesen, agent in charge at the Kingston office, when questioned this morning, stated that any specific information regarding office changes would have to come from Mr. McCampbell, but admitted that as a result of changes only about a quarter of those at present on the staff were connected with the office originally.

The staff at the Kingston office is said to be larger now than at any time since it was established.

Moves To Investigate Dairymen's League

Albany, N. Y., March 21 (AP).—An investigation of the New York Dairymen's League Cooperative Association, Inc., centering about a state senator's reference to a thus far unidentified check, is proposed in a resolution before the senate committee on agriculture today.

The League, one of the nation's outstanding farm cooperatives, has figured prominently in New York milk producers' attempts to get higher prices for their products. At present they are getting less than two cents a quart for milk.

The reference to the check was made last summer by Senator Stephen J. Wojtkowiak, Buffalo Democrat, during one of the Picher milk investigating committee's hearings in New York city. Wojtkowiak intimated that if a certain check could be obtained by subpoena, an indictment might be obtained upon the check.

The senator's remarks have been challenged by the Dairymen's League through its general attorney, Seward A. Miller, in a letter to Senator Wojtkowiak under date of February 25.

Wojtkowiak's answer was a resolution presented on the floor of the senate last night. It contains no reference to his remarks during the committee hearing, but calls upon the senate to bring about an investigation by its committee on agriculture to determine in what manner the Dairymen's League has exercised the "rights, powers and privileges" granted to it by the state.

THE YOUNG MAN'S JOB

"What can a young man do?" asks a writer in the current Atlantic, and answers it by suggesting that in the next few years, instead of seeking a job in a big corporation, he turn to "the small personal and local business ventures," citing as examples fine photography and a crossroads store. There is no doubt that as there is a movement towards centralizing the control of finance and industry, there is also a strong movement toward decentralizing. The trend is from the job with a corporation so big that it sprawls without power to move forward, to the small venture in which the individual has the right and power of making his own decisions.

Many young people, however, have no choice. What, in all seriousness, can the young man do who is now coming out of school to join the unemployed? In the first place, he has to learn to do without a job cheerfully. Milling around and driving the family wild isn't being much of an asset. He can doubtless find some ways of helping the home and family life. He can help with the neighborhood Scouts or other boys' clubs. He can get books from the library and go on with his education. He can join a military training camp, not for army purposes, but because the discipline and teamwork there learned will be useful later in civilian life. He can take time to think out what job he would like best if he could choose, which is an excellent way to find oneself. In other words, he can get himself ready, can help his family and the younger kids to get ready for that time in the not distant future when America will need once more the hands and brains of all her citizens.

PUBLICITY-DODGING?

Snider Lewis is returning to America—now don't say you didn't know he had been away!—and whether he lands amid a welcoming uproar or utterly unnoticed seems to depend on how his program works and what his program is. A newspaper reader may be forgiven for being a little puzzled about it all.

A cable from London brought the news, reported in the New York Times, that Mr. Lewis was trying to "return as inconspicuously as possible." In order to do this he booked passage anonymously on a small ten-day boat, even the steamship company not knowing until the last moment that it was to have such an illustrious guest. Unfortunately for his plan, or perhaps one should say fortunately—it is all in knowing his real intention—Mr. Lewis "confided to a gossip writer" the truth of the matter. The gossip writer broke faith, or did his duty—this is very complicated—by reporting the fact in his column immediately, and the cat was out of the bag.

So now if New York city and a lot of newspapers want to be so cruel as to intrude on the famous author's quiet and isolation, nothing can stop them. They know he is coming and when. Authors and movie actresses have such a hard time eluding their public! Mr. Lewis might have learned this fact from Greta Garbo's unsuccessful attempts to dodge the limelight. Perhaps he did.

Business of many kinds takes an interest in the decision of the United States Supreme Court in the case of Appalachian Coals Inc. The legality of this company, organized by the Appalachian field producers for the joint marketing of their product, was challenged, and an injunction had been obtained against them. The court holds that their purpose is not a violation of the Sherman anti-trust law, as charged. In the present status of American industry, this is an important decision. It evidently means that business institutions of many kinds may lawfully combine for marketing purposes, as the farm, the hardware store, the drug store, the cooperatives do. Such permission Miller should help in reviving the soft coal industry. Its producers have been hampered by inability to act together for their mutual welfare. Application of the same principle may help various other industries in similar plight.

John Maschell's visit to this country has resulted, it is said, in a case of public expression on the part of dockhands, oilers, riggers, stewards, even mates and captains. The Seamen's Church Institute of New York, largest seamen community in the world for merchant sailors, reports many of the would-be poets coming in to ask for criticism on their poems and for books on the technique of writing poetry. Leisure time at sea, it appears, is used to quite an extent in pursuit of this art. It is a tendency deserving encouragement. Whether or not the world benefits by the appearance of new Maschells, the poetry writers themselves should derive a good deal of pleasure and satisfaction from their efforts, particularly if their study of poetry-writing leads them to poetry-reading.

TREATING RHEUMATISM

Notwithstanding the fact that rheumatism is one of the oldest if not the oldest disease known to mankind, there is now just as much rheumatism in proportion to the population as at any previous time in history.

We know that most cases of rheumatism or arthritis may be prevented by removing infected teeth and tonsils, and by keeping the liver and intestine active, but unfortunately it is not until there is a twinge of rheumatism that any thought is given to the cause. By the time the pain is felt, the infection from teeth, tonsils, or intestine has usually been active for months and years, so that even after removing the cause of the infection there is still the painful joints or muscles to be relieved. That an overuse of starchy foods, not meat, is a cause of rheumatism in some cases is now admitted.

As rheumatism means much suffering and time lost from work, very serious efforts are being made throughout the world to relieve this suffering, and enable the patient to resume his occupation. During a period of sixteen months 759 articles on rheumatism and arthritis were published in English, French and German alone. Of this number almost 50 per cent had to do with treatment rather than with the cause.

What were the forms of treatment? There were different forms of heat, dry and moist; the use of baths and douches, mud baths, peat and paraffin-wax baths; the use of diathermy whereby the electric current is applied to the interior of the joint itself instead of to the surface of the skin. In arthritis of the hip joint it is found that "not a single method known gives such good results as diathermy."

Massage, and medical gymnastics is another form of treatment which in skilled hands gives excellent results in many cases.

The use of light in various forms—ultraviolet, ultra violet rays, and the use of the X-ray were found helpful. The diet treatment consists in cutting down on the starchy foods—potatoes, bread, pastry.

The medical treatment is still the use of the salicylates, which relieve pain and aid the circulation. Research workers are not agreed as to the value of vaccines in rheumatism. And finally surgical treatment, relieving pain by cutting certain nerves. Is being used in some forms of rheumatism.

With so many kinds of treatment you can see that curing rheumatism must be a difficult matter.

The prevention of rheumatism—removing infection from the system—should be really our first thought.

CHAPTER 21
RAISUL'S PLAN

"Kismet! Kismet! Fate plays some funny tricks. Surely one of the funniest was to bring Raisul looking for just such a tool, across the path of Riccoli," Le Sage continued.

"Raisul, who can pass as a Spaniard in Spain, an Englishman in England, and almost as a Frenchman in France, is really clever, really subtle, and therefore infinitely more dangerous than his father, who is merely a first-class Robber Baron of the old pattern."

"And there again, strangely enough, it was Riccoli who brought Raisul under our more particular notice, for he was watching and calculating Riccoli when I was doing the same thing. I have kept my eye on him ever since the year he became a captain; for even then he was a very remarkable man. And even then had amazing boundless ambitions, and made no secret of them."

"You won't be too deeply chagrined and hurt, I am sure, if I disclose to you the fact that he offered my own wife the same high destiny which he laid at your feet tonight."

Margaret smiled.

"I am a little disappointed, Colonel Le Sage," she said. "It takes a little of the gilt off the gingerbread for me."

"Yes, but I am going to take the gingerbread from under the gilt, for him," answered Le Sage. "And quite soon, I hope."

"Yes," he continued. "A Corsican officer of Chasseurs d'Afrique, who thinks in kingdoms and empires, is worth watching. Especially later, when his partner is the interesting Raisul, son and heir of the Kaid of Mekkenzen; and most particularly so, when later still, he intrigues hard, moves heaven and earth, we may say, to get posted to the least desirable spot in the French African Empire, and that spot happens to be on the borders of Mekkenzen."

"I wonder the French authorities didn't arrest Raisul," said Margaret.

"Oh no, my child, that would never have done. In the first place, there were no grounds for doing so, for it is not a criminal offense to be the son of one's papa; and in the second place, once I was on his track and had a pretty clear idea of what was on, I should have been very sorry if the game had been stopped at that stage."

"Well, Raisul fooled Riccoli, and Riccoli fooled Raisul, or each thought he was fooling the other. Raisul saw his way to giving France a hideous shock as well as gathering in some very solid material advantages in the shape of the latest guns—very difficult to get hold of—rifles, and a large number of European-trained soldiers. Also officers and specialists, engineers, signalers, gunners and so on."

"Doubtless Raisul hopes that Riccoli will be a perfectly invaluable tool and weapon until the time comes to break it—and that will be the time when the tool begins to turn in its master's hand, the weapon to be two-edged. It may happen at once. Riccoli may show his hand now."

"And then exit Riccoli!"

"And where did Riccoli fool Raisul?" asked Margaret.

"By pretending to be the tool, while intending to be the master. He hasn't the very faintest intention of really serving the Kaid of Mekkenzen. Do you know what he has come here to do? Nothing more nor less than to seize this Citadel."

"What?" asked Margaret. "Capture the castle?"

"Yes. And whoever holds the Citadel holds the town. And, of course, the country. But Riccoli is not doing this for France. It is for himself."

"How do you know? How could you prove it?" asked Margaret.

"Know and prove? Well, I know because I have known Riccoli and the workings of his mind for a very long time; and because, thanks partly to you, Margaret, I know that his mind is working today; as it worked when first he brought himself to my notice, through his proposal to my wife. But working now far more violently. That is how I know."

"And as for proof, the fact has convinced himself not only in speech and in writing, but in act."

"What he has done and came to the borders of Mekkenzen, he was able to pick certain subordinate to go with his column. So was I. And one of two of the people whom he has corrupted were planted there to be approached and corrupted."

"It seems hardly believable," said Margaret.

"Yes, it would be unbelievable, if it hadn't been done before," replied Le Sage. "And I suppose you got at least one of that type in every generation of soldiers."

"Isn't it just possible," said Margaret, "that he is loyal; that his colossal ambition is working along the legitimate channel? Rash and unorthodox, vain and self-sufficient, if you like, but not a traitor? Might it not be that he sees himself the hero of France, and the idol of the army?"

"A successful Marchand of Feuchoda, perhaps?" smiled Le Sage.

"No. But I am going to give him one last chance at the last second of the eleventh hour."

"Well, I've heard of sitting on a volcano," began Margaret. "What would happen if there is an explosion behind your back?"

"Depends. If Riccoli acts first, and is successful, the explosion will be heard all over Europe. Incidentally, I shall probably be blown out of the castle, and I shall take you with me, Margaret, if you'd like to come. Not but what I should think you'd be safe enough here, for I don't for a moment think that Raisul and one or two of the others will survive the explosion. In plain English Riccoli will certainly shoot him and the Kaid for a start."

"Even so," replied Margaret, "if that happens, I'll go with you, please, Colonel Le Sage, if it can be managed."

"Yes, we'll get you away, all right, in disguise. Make a dirty little Arab youth of you and hand you over to my caravan-leader. You'll be safe enough then, provided you do what he tells you."

"I don't understand any Arabic, you know," said Margaret.

"He's a French officer, Captain Pierrepont of the Intelligence Department," smiled Le Sage. "An officer and a gentleman. You'll be safe enough with him. Incidentally so is the dirty ruffian with the awful squint—the man who carried our notes. He is Major Langeac—a very handsome man when he takes off his squint and his dirt, and puts his false teeth in. He had all his beautiful teeth drawn to facilitate his disguising himself. There's zeal for you!"

"There'll be fighting, in any case, won't there?" asked Margaret.

"Heaven knows what there'll be, my dear. There's bound to be a certain amount of shooting, I expect. It's impossible to say what will happen, whoever begins the debacle—Riccoli, Raisul, the Kaid—or Jules Maligni and Pedro Maligni with some game of their own—or I, myself."

"Haven't you got to anticipate them in any case?" asked Margaret.

"No, not necessarily. Not so much anticipate them as act simultaneously but contrarily. If Riccoli is able to act in time and seize the castle, I act too—and say, 'Thank you—my castle, I think, having laid my plans to be in a position to do so, plans depending on the conduct of the legionnaires to a great extent, as I said.'

"If Raisul chooses to act before he's got all the column here and, deciding that Riccoli is not going to be his tool and weapon, cuts his throat. I must try to do my best with the section of legionnaires that is here. If they have been utterly corrupted, we must go—and see what I can do with the advancing reinforcements. I think I could manage them all right—and perhaps play Riccoli's part—play his game. But play it for France."

"In any event, don't worry, my dear. You shall get home all right."

"Home!" breathed Margaret.

"Where is it?" asked Le Sage.

"Teverbury," replied Margaret. "Not by so much as the flicker of an eyelid did Colonel Le Sage betray the fact that he had received one of the surprises of a lifetime."

"What did you say, Margaret?"

"Teverbury."

"Ah... I seem to have heard of it somewhere."

A blow from behind fell on him whom Margaret is greatly interested, tomorrow.

The Grace of Forgiving

Nothing is really ended till it is forgotten. Whatever is kept in memory still endures either to help or to hurt. The Psalmists and the prophets who ask God not to forget their weakness or their faults ask Him also not to remember their sins. And His promise to forget is as gracious as His promise to remember. We ought also to forget. As long as we keep grudges alive in memory, treasure past wrongs done, we can never get clear for a fresh start. Individuals must forget, even nations.

National enemies are kept around, entering away to break into war because nations will not forget. Bands and wives are unhappy because they will not forget. When the wrong is confessed, forgiveness granted, then forgetting is a blessed abolition. We can and should forget our own past faults when we have done our best to correct them. If God does not remember, why should we?

Prayer: O Thou who hast promised to remember no more the sins for which we are sincerely sorry and to give us a new heart of courage and faith, grant us the healing grace of a forgetfulness which shall end old wrongs and regrets and enable us to begin again as though our shadowed past had ceased to be and a new day dawned. In His name we pray. Amen.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS—By John Hix

For further proof address the author, enclosing a stamped envelope for reply. Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

Cold, unromantic science, always skeptical, has conducted experiments the results of which prove that the index finger, or even the thumb, is better qualified than the ring finger to wear the engagement ring—it feeling is a consideration. It has been shown that the ring finger is the least sensitive, hence most senseless finger of the left hand.

One explanation of the use of the third finger as the ring finger is offered in the story that people once believed a vein ran directly from that finger to the heart, but science now knows this to be wrong.

Tests show that, on an average, the index finger is the most sensitive. The thumb and middle finger are about even for second and third places, and the little finger takes fourth place. The ring finger is last. No evidence has been brought out to show that the results of the tests would have been different had they been conducted under the moon, instead of in the research laboratory.

Brand New Topics at The Old Corner Store

Shokan, March 20.—For the boys and men who foregather betimes around the pot-bellied stove in the rear of the corner store these days, there is no dearth of fresh conversational fodder on tap; rather there is much that calls for intelligent discussion and impartial criticism on the part of our best minds. Moreover, in addition to the sundry new items which suggest themselves daily, there remain a number of interesting hold-overs from several brilliant digests of an earlier date, and these too are played upon with cleverly conceived variations for the edification and amusement of all hands.

Incidentally, there have been some lively dominoes sessions around the chunkwood fire during the past week, the championship games of Saturday night being especially worthy of honorable mention. In this week-end contest, Homer Markle, west end poultryman, and George Von der Osten, well-known war veteran, were pitted against Paul James and Elwyn Winchell.

And what did the lads from up the road do but carry away in their sheepskin coats a total of seven out of the eight games played! Now here was a victory well worth crowing about, although the winners in this case are modest fellows and inherently inclined to wear their laurels lightly. George, who has seen active service in France (and not in gay Paree either), and Homer, who has traveled about quite a bit, make a mighty strong pair to draw to in a session with the dotted circles, while Elwyn, a dominoes player of sixty years' experience, and Paul, who has lived in four states, are certainly not to be sneezed at. Let it be said in defense of the losers, however, that these gentlemen were not in the best of form, one of them having a cold in the head whilst his partner suffered from a premature attack of spring fever.

The talk apropos of beer continues strong—much stronger, in fact, than the set alcoholic content of the proposed amber brew, and the prospects are that this subject will keep right on holding its own for another thirty days at least. Speculation has not abated a whit as to the probable first proprietor of a garden here, together with the exact location of the premises. The boys josh one another about going into partnership in dispensing suds and even argue as to which of them shall stand before the polished bar and to whom shall fall the lot of mopping up the puddles on mahogany surfaces. One man, well-known in church circles, opines sagely that the bootleggers will put more kick in their illegal brew and thus annex the cream of the trade, with a result that our Uncle Sam will fall far short of garnering the anticipated millions in revenue mazzuma. And as if by way of supporting the proposition of the churchman, one of the bona fide old timers of the group dragged forth from the storehouse of his memory an illuminating word-picture of bootlegging activities in Shokan sixty years or more ago, at a time when Oliver was still nominally wet and subsequent victories at the poils by zealous Good Templars, aided and abetted by loyal White Ribboners, were as yet based on faith and nurtured by that small something that is thought to spring eternal in the human breast.

This oldest spake at length of the days when there were about twenty speakeys—or whatever it was that they used to call the stealthily conducted dispensaries of the long ago—to four legally operated places in the same section, and explained how it was that the bootleggers of those times invariably got the bulk of the local trade in wet goods, while the more respectable bars fared far less prosperously. He could just remember, so he said, an old fellow, nicknamed "Clubby" because of a pedal deformity, who lived in a shack in the old village and was wont to deal out stuff of his own brewing in those quaint stone bottles such as still occasionally are to be found in garrets or cellars of the older residents. Clubby and his disreputable establishment naturally were frowned upon by both the forces of law and order and the pious populace, yet he flourished after a fashion as a result of a judicious catering to a weakness of the wilder young fellows of the neighborhood. There always was plenty of bootlegging here in Olive, no matter whether the town was wet or dry under local option, the old timer concluded.

Ice harvesting, as a topic of conversation, apparently is about on its last legs, and the summing up of the local situation this season having been duly made and passed, it is doubtful if this subject will again be taken up in the forum. The consensus of opinion is that the ice season was about the poorest ever, and some of the ice that was hauled might as well have been left on the ponds. At the last house to be filled, or partially so, a few days ago the men drew over a hundred cakes to the truckload a distance of eight miles and finished their job at about 2 o'clock in the morning. Now if this ice is four inches thick on next Fourth of July, why that will be something, according to the opinion of divers cracker-barrel philosophers and wisecracks. Still, thin ice is better than no ice at all in the hot season, and besides everyone has done as well as could be expected under the circumstances.

There is some talk to the effect that a stranger is about to erect a coal and feed warehouse down at the Central Railroad yard, though this plan is said to be still in the embryonic stage. Nevertheless, the rumor is of an innovation which, if it materializes, will exert a considerable economic influence locally and is therefore a pertinent matter for public discussion. One man, being interrogated facetiously as to whether or not there were any stores left on his small farm here, replied that there apparently were just as many huge stone walls were laid up there generations ago. Said also that the driveway to his garage was so well paved with round stones that he was thinking seriously of puddling them in cement with a view to forming a classy, imperishable entrance to his benzine huggy stable. Another well-known resident is said to have all of his money tied up in a suspended bank with a result that he is presently short of even "chicken feed."

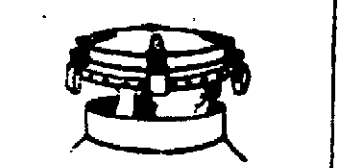

Such is tough luck, the boys all agree.

Speaking of chicken feed, the real stuff has gone up twelve cents a hundred in price while eggs have dropped a cent a dozen. Now where is the justice in that? It sounds reasonable that if wheat and corn continue to jump (and no man begrudges the poor Western hayseed this bit of encouragement), then by the same token the price of hen fruit should also seek the higher level. It begins to look as if the poultryman is really the much-touted "Forgotten Man," sure enough... Finally, one of the crowd had been listening to a radio talk on war veterans' compensation abuses and was all pepped up on the subject. His stories, as gained via the ether, about firemen and policemen who have gained promotion by virtue of their war records, not to mention their milking the taxpayers of fat pensions and salaries combined, brought repeated and hearty response from the smen corner. All these and many other burning issues of the day are tackled without hesitation, and disposed of effectively, during the friendly confabs at the old corner store.

Court Adjourns for Lack of Business

There was no business transacted in supreme court Monday afternoon when Lawrence Levine, counsel for plaintiff in No. 52, Louis Jalkow against Edward B. Hittleman Brewing Co., and others, reported by phone to the court that he had been engaged in an automobile accident somewhere in New Jersey while returning to Kingston with witnesses and would be unable to arrive in town to continue the case. Daniel Hoffman, who conveyed the message to the court, stated that he had no details of the accident and an effort was made to determine whether Mr. Levine would be able to continue the case today. It was finally stated that he probably would be able to finish the trial today and a recess was taken. Levine appears in the case for plaintiff, whose attorney of record is Manuel Dittenheimer.

When the Jalkow-Hittleman action was unable to go on Judge Russell made an effort to find something to keep the court busy, but was unsuccessful. He tried to arrange his day calendar so some case might be taken up for trial this morning in the event the Jalkow-Hittleman case was not continued, but that effort met with no success.

After repeated efforts to get some case on the calendar which might be ready today, Judge Russell announced that a day calendar was supposed to be a ready calendar, that attorneys should have their witnesses and clients ready to go to trial at any time once the case was on the day calendar. "If I put twenty cases on the day calendar, you wait for each other, and if I put five cases on then no one is ready," said Judge Russell as he left the bench.

Continuing Judge Russell stated that he was ready for plaintiffs to take judgment at any time in cases on the day calendar where the defendant was not ready or he would entertain a motion to dismiss complaints where the plaintiffs were not ready after allowing their cases to go on the day calendar.

It has been a practice for lawyers to place a case on the day calendar but when the case was called for trial when some break occurred in the calendar in many cases the lawyer was not ready to go to trial. Frequently the attorney asked for a day or two to get his witnesses and prepare for trial although the case was announced as "ready" when placed on the calendar.

Judge Russell stated Monday afternoon that a day calendar should contain cases in which the attorneys are ready to go to trial at once.

After failing to get any case on trial a recess was taken until today when 82 will be continued.

Nos. 5, 9, 10 and 373 were announced as settled. They are negligence actions brought by Richard F. Lang, Richard F. Lang as administrator, Richard F. Lang, Jr., by guardian, and Margaret Ann Lang, by guardian, against Joseph Schlachter and another. F. W. Brooks appears for plaintiffs and Earl S. Jones for defendants.

"There may be profit in selling inferior things—but there's no profit in buying them—"

At Goldman's low prices stop where "inferiority" begins—that is why anything purchased at this store has "no regrets".

The "Bargains" that hang uncorrupted in the closet are the most expensive things you ever bought. The things that you wear and wear and wear are the real bargains after all—they're the things that look so well on you because they fit perfectly, are styled well, made well, and because you bought them at Goldman's where quality has no premium.

Horse Sign of Culture

A general love of horse-riding prevailed in ancient Athens. The possession of a large stud of horses was considered the hallmark of what we term today a man of culture. In the same way that the possession of horses, hounds and hawks was supposed to mark the aristocrat in medieval times. A man would often be named after the class of horses he owned: Nanthippus meant "He of the horses"; Leucippus, "He of the white horses," etc.

Actually 666 out of the 694 important Hollywood actresses (including all stars) use fragrant white Lux Toilet Soap. Why don't you try it? Begin today to use it regularly!

How I Broke Into The Movies

Copyright by Hal C. Hoffman

By JOAN CRAWFORD

DANCING was the avenue by which I reached the screen!

During childhood it was my ambition to carve for myself a niche in the theater's hall of fame. My parents, however, had different plans for me and always discouraged my thoughts in this direction. Eventually I had to run away from home to even get a chance to demonstrate my embryonic talents. But let's start at the beginning!

I was born at San Antonio, Tex., and, like most any other child, spent my early teens mastering the mysteries of the three "R's." But after school hours and during vacation periods my thoughts always strayed to a secretly cherished dream of some day becoming a great actress.

Although my father owned a theater he refused to even think of permitting me to train for a theatrical career but his resistance merely served to whet my desire to seek fame on the stage.

This predilection became even more strongly attached to me while I was attending finishing school in Kansas City.

One day I sat down and figured the whole thing out. I wanted to be an actress, of this I was sure. But father and mother thought otherwise. So I decided upon a bold course, a daring step. I ran away from home. As I look back I can see that it was indeed a foolhardy venture for a young girl, untrained in the ways of the world, to alone seek her livelihood in a strange city. Good luck was with me from the outset and I landed my first job with a revue in Chicago. That was in 1922. During this engagement I acquired much experience that was to prove invaluable to me in later years.

My next jump was to New York where I appeared in the Shubert production, "Innocent Eyes." The theater program listed me as Lucile Le Sueur.

It seemed too good to be true. At last I was really in the theater. Next came a part in "The Passing Show" at the Winter Garden. Little did I suspect that I was to dance my way right out of this show into the movies. But that's just exactly what happened when Harry Rapf of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios saw the show one evening and offered me the chance to enter motion pictures.

Was I thrilled? Why, I was so excited I could hardly talk. I wondered what Hollywood was really like. Would I be a star with my name in electric lights or just another girl among a legion of failures? These thoughts ran through my mind as I packed for the westward jaunt. I hoped for the best.

Upon my arrival in the movie city I was given six months of intensive training in the art of screen acting and under the name of Joan Crawford, chosen for me by the public, I made my first appearance before the camera in a picture called "Pretty Ladies." I was extremely happy even though my part was only that of an extra player, I learned that extra work was the foundation upon which some of our greatest artists have built their careers. Perhaps I too would be so fortunate.

My optimism knew no bounds when I was picked for an important part with Jackie Coogan in "Old Clothes." My work in this production seemed to settle my future as a featured player and I was tendered a long term contract to which I happily and hurriedly affixed my signature.

Next I was cast for one of the leading roles in "Sally, Irene and Mary." In 1925, I was chosen as a Wampas Baby Star, "Wampas" meaning the Western Association of Motion Picture Advertisers.

There are two pictures to which I owe much in the matter of making my name known to the film fans. They are "The Roach" and "Paris."

Other vehicles which helped me in the climb to celluloid prominence are: "The Understanding Heart," "The Taxi Dancer," "Winners of the Wilderness," "The Unknown," "Spring Fever," "West Point," "Our Dancing Daughters," "Dream of Love," "The Fake Steps Out," "Rain" and "Grand Hotel."

With the making of "Our Modern Maidens" I first reached stardom. So you see, I really danced my way into the movies, and the movies have kept me dancing ever since.

At The Theatres

Today

Kingston: "Tess of the Storm Country." After a long period of time, Charles Farrell and Janet Gaynor, the screen's most prominent and popular romantic team, are together again in a story especially adapted to their talents. This time Miss Gaynor is the daughter of a sea captain who decides to settle down on land after giving his best years to the sea, and who finds himself tangled up in a murder before he has been enjoying his retirement for any great length of time. His daughter and the boy she falls in love with, played by Charles Farrell, solve the murder together, and all turns out happily in the end. Well photographed and interesting from start to finish is this last picture that this romantic team will be seen in together.

Orpheum: "Blonde Venus" and "Law of the Sea." Marlene Dietrich is the star of the first drama, a story of a dancing girl who marries an inventor, and after sickness causes his downfall, she goes back to the stage in an effort to earn money enough to send him abroad for treatment. Complications arise, and Miss Dietrich, as the young wife, goes from depths to the heights as an entertainer, and all turns out successfully at the end. Herbert Marshall is in the supporting cast. Josef von Sternberg directed. "Law of the Sea" is an exciting talkie laid on shipboard, with Sally Blane and Ralph Ince in the featured roles.

Broadway: "Nazana." This play is the story of a scientist and his adventures in the wilds of Africa as he seeks a cure to the dreaded sleeping sickness disease. The girl he loves follows him into the jungle, and both are captured by natives and have a terrible time before escaping with their lives. There are numerous thrills in this African melodrama, and some of the tribal dances and wild animal battles are electrifying. Melvyn Douglas proves to be a handsome young scientist, and Tala Birell, a newcomer to the screen, is beautiful as the girl. Fast moving entertainment, modeled along the lines of former African talkie successes.

Tomorrow

Kingston: Same. Orpheum: "War Correspondent" and "The Girl from Calgary." Ralph Graves and Jack Holt contribute one of their best co-starring performances in this fast paced story of war correspondents and their troubles. The show has numerous laughs and plenty of action. "The Girl from Calgary" stars the vivacious Fifi Dorsay in a riotous musical romance with a capable supporting cast.

Sexton Outclasses Mahoney At Armory

Eddie Sexton, boxing hero for the first time in several months, scored a decisive victory over the American Legion, who were out of the armory which had been closed for the last time last week.

In winning the fight, Sexton gave a victory over a professional exhibition. He prepared Mahoney with gloves which were tried on before his way in for a body attack. He started with a body blow by the third round and never stood a chance from that on. Sexton called on to win in the wraps, although he took all recreation to top any of the usual salutes that the Connecticut "Burrhead" gave across.

Mahoney, who looked good in battle with other pugilists, was not as effective against Sexton, probably the smartest fighter he has met since starting his boxing campaign. The easterner had an eight pound advantage, weighing 174 while the negro, venturing out of the middle-weight class for the first time, tipped the beam at 165.

The match put the finishing touches on the evening's program to the delight of the spectators, most of whom picked Sexton from the start showing full well of his boxing skills as shown last summer in ring tests with Jackie Feldman, Phil Bronson and Johnny Raymond, Flatbush pride.

Unbeaten Loses. Adam Unverzagt, Ellenville's hope of gaining pugilistic fame, ran across a tough problem in Jack Dempsey, pudgy little puncher from Brooklyn from whom he took an awful shellacking. Dempsey, with all the marks of a seasoned old ringster, was on Adam from the opening gong and although the Ellenville youngster fought as well as he knew how, his knowledge as an amateur failed to save him from the worst lacing he has received since taking up the manly art. The Brooklynite, weighing 145, had his foe at mercy all through the fight. However, he was not the "killer" type and let go many opportunities to try for a knockout. Unverzagt weighed 148.

Dempsey proved popular with the fans who gave him a big hand as he left the ring. Unverzagt, too, came in for his share of applause for his name stand against the ring-visionist. Those who liked Dempsey's style will have another chance to see him in action Friday night, March 31, when he meets Johnny Raymond in the feature of Mike Slinger's Milk Pund Show at Catskill. Raymond is expected to give him a tougher test than Unverzagt.

Emerson Wins By Kays. Buddy Emerson, St. Remy lightweight, weighing 132, coasted to an easy victory over Jesse Diaz, 130, of Brooklyn by knocking him out in the second round. Time of the kayo was one minute and 30 seconds, up to which the little visitor peppered away at Buddy in flashy style. He failed to watch Emerson's powerful right though, and got stung by a couple that dumped him into the resin. Diaz replaced Jack Diamond who was scheduled for a return match to give Buddy a chance to undo an unpopular decision he holds over him.

A Fluky Win. Jerry Trought, the "Orpheum Slugger," substituting for Mickey Raymond, got the decision over Claude Williams, a spartan of Eddie Sexton. In a four rounder that was as free from action as a fish from feathers, according to one expert who favored throwing both out of the ring instead of boring the fans and in the end punishing the Brooklynite by giving the duke to Trought. Both were warned to "fight" several times by Referee Bill Singer. Along with the decision for the "Orpheum Slugger" was a nice "razzberry" Matchmaker Doc Stander who appeared on the scene to hear the verdict shared the "fruit" with Trought.

Other Results. Jimmy Rodden, Rondout flash, put up one of the fastest exhibitions of the evening in decisively outpointing Joe Turck, his lightweight opponent of over two years. The victory was Rodden's second over the game little Italian whom he defeated in Catskill last week. Two years ago Turck took two scraps from Jimmy so the boys are now even. The downtown "Baby Face" showed great improvement last night and probably will get some place in the amateur ranks if he keeps in condition and continues to polish up on his boxing tactics. The weights were Rodden 135, Turck 132.

Young Emerson, 124, St. Remy, outpointed Billy Buckman, Kingston, 125, four rounds. Frankie Kouchout, 155, Twaitskill Club, outpointed Young Mower, Kingston, 155, four rounds. Charlie Boyce, St. Remy, 135, outpointed Sonny Anderson, 132, Kingston, three rounds.

Officials were Bill Singer, referee; Jack Finnerty and Charlie Nettis, judges; Joe Stils, timer; and Sam Huber, announcer.

Another Card Pending. Another card of bouts for the Legion will be held in two weeks if the old armory is available, it was announced.

Oakwood Beat New Paltz Teams. New Paltz, March 21.—New Paltz High School boys' basketball team was defeated on Saturday, March 18, at Oakwood, the Oakwood varsity winning 24 to 21. The Oakwood seconds won over New Paltz seconds, 22 to 7. New Paltz Girls were defeated by Oakwood Girls, 23 to 16. Next Friday night the local high school teams will play the alumni in the high school gym.

Winthrop—Watkins' Big Tracer. Winthrop, stopped Angelo Puglisi, 124, 10, 19.

SPORT SLANTS

By ALAN J. GOULD

(Associated Press Sports Editor)

Most basketball fans remember that Eddie Sexton first tried out with the Athletics under the alias of "Eddie Sullivan" while still an undergraduate at Columbia University, but few know this wasn't the reason the new general manager of the Red Sox was barred from collegiate competition in his senior year and asked, instead, to coach the team.

Our authority for this bit of ancient history is Jack Coffey, Fordham graduate manager, who was a collegiate contemporary of Collins and enjoyed a checkered professional baseball career for years before he took over his present post with the Maroon in 1924.

"Collins played under his own name in a little league in upstate New York before he caught the eye of big league scouts and was given a tryout with the A's," said Coffey. "He didn't think anything of it at the time but when the question of his eligibility arose, this was the reason they barred him. The fact he had played big league ball under another name was all O. K."

Wasn't Zimm's Fault. "Eddie Zimmerman played on the same team with Collins in those days," recalled Coffey. "It was a coincidence that years later, in 1917, they were on opposite sides in the world series, in one game of which Heinie chased Eddie across the plate, trying to tag him."

"It was a foolish play, of course, and Zimmerman always was charged with one of the biggest 'bones' in baseball but it wasn't entirely his fault. Heinie, catching for the Giants, had advanced up the third base line during the play, leaving the plate unprotected. Heinie, the first baseman, also failed to cover and when Collins broke away, pursued by Zimmerman, there was no one to whom Heinie could throw the ball."

John Francis Coffey served three big league teams as an infielder, playing with both Boston clubs as well as Detroit, but his light attack work kept him in the minors most of the time. He claims to hold a record of having played on about 55 clubs in around 18 different leagues during a period of 16 years.

A's Cut Overhead. By one means or another, the Philadelphia Athletics probably have reduced their 1933 payroll to a bigger extent than any other major league ball club.

There is no doubt Connie Mack has experienced some pangs of regret, but it also is a fact that the overhead of the A's has been cut from $75,000 to $100,000 by the departure of players Simmons, Haas and Dykes as well as Captain Collins. These four all were among the highest paid, for their positions, in the league.

Mack publicly admitted Dykes was the biggest salaried third sacker in the majors and it is known Simmons has a year to go on a three-year $100,000 contract.

At the Koenig A. C. Monday Andy Krum defeated Tony Pino, 100-88, in the city billiard series. High runs were Krum 116, Pino 11.

Steve Kasilich and Andy Cherney oppose each other tonight at Nick's in the opener of the seventh round of the championship.

Tri-Parlor Tourney. Clifton Quick outscored "Rookie" Prusack 100-76 in the tri-parlor tournament Monday. High runs were Prusack 11, Quick 10.

Tonight Harry Ertel meets Quick at the Hasbrouck Social Club at 8 o'clock.

The Champ Drawing. Nick Kasilich, sponsoring the appearance of Ralph Greenleaf, pocket billiard champion at his parlor on Wall street, Friday, March 24, reports large ticket sales, especially reserved seats, for the afternoon and evening exhibitions. Besides executing trick shots, Greenleaf will play two local experts, Stan Wojcik and Freddie Planthaber.

Two postponed games in the Sunday School Basketball League will be played tonight at the Y. M. C. A. as follows: Redeemer vs. St. James at 8:45 and Comforter vs. Clinton Avenue M. E. at 9:30.

Giants Have Hope Of Doing Better in 1933 Pennant Race

Los Angeles, March 21. (AP).—With their defensive fences in good repair, save perhaps on the pitching hilltop, the New York Giants look to the 1933 National League pennant race with a feeling that last year's sad story will not be retold.

Manager Bill Terry has built up a sturdy reserve back of his regular infield, mindful of the injuries which rather messed up things in 1932 and 1933. He has put new power into the outfield and more life back of the plate, leaving the only question mark written in the hurling corps.

"The Best" Infield. The Giants' infield appears especially strong. Travis (Stonewall) Jackson has been more active than ever at shortstop since his legs were overhauled during the winter. Hughie Critz's confidence in his once ailing arm has been restored and Johnny Vergez has improved his work at third and at the plate.

Terry completes what he is willing to call at any time the best infield in the league. He has been clubbing the ball at a pace which promises another year like that of last season when he hit .355. His work at first has been of the same sturdy caliber.

To those who sought Sam Leslie in the winter deals he turned a deaf ear. While the Mississippi man may not have much opportunity to take his manager's place, he again will be an active pinch hitter.

Then there is Byrne James, built much on Critz's lines, for second base as Hughie's understudy, and the big blonde John Ryan, a great fielder at third, short or second, but a bit weak on hitting.

Strong Catching Staff. Terry figured he lost too many games behind the plate in 1932, but predicts this won't happen again. With Gus Mancuso, a peppery little catcher with a fine throwing arm and lots of power in his hitting, and Paul Richards, purchased from Indianapolis of the American Association, to carry most of the burden, Mancuso went to the Giants in a trade with the St. Louis Cardinals.

George Davis, who hit .309 as lead off man with the Phillies last year, is the most important addition to the outfield. Melvin Ott, a 24-year-old veteran of eight years with the club, is still looked upon as one of the best outer gardeners of the circuit and Joe Moore probably will fill the other spot.

Pitching Problem. An effort has been made to help solve the pitching problem with lots of hard work during the spring training grind. Carl Hubbell, Fred Fitzsimmons, Leroy Parmelee, Glenn Spencer, Ray Starr, Adolfo Luque, Bill Shores, Hal Schumacher and Herman Bell seem to be the best choices for a full season of activity.

Of these Hubbell, the southpaw, and Fitzsimmons, big right hander, are expected to be the ring leaders. Terry has spent a lot of time with Parmelee, who won 14 out of 15 games with Columbus last summer, and Schumacher, with the idea of putting them on the regular starting list when the season opens.

Whatever else happens, Memphis Bill promises to put an end to the ninth inning defeats which swamped the club last year.

KNIGHTS AND ELKS TO SHUFFLE TONIGHT. The shuffleboard teams of the Knights of Columbus and Elks, now tied at eight apiece in a series of games, will play it off tonight on the Ailes' table, starting at 8 o'clock. A large attendance from both organizations is expected to witness the tilt.

Take Your Choice. Some one has calculated that there are more than 10,000 ways in which a letter can be mailed.

Maroon Batteries Begin Practice

The inclement weather prevented a football workout Monday as Coach Kins turned his attention to baseball and called for a workout of the batteries in the school gym. Some 12 candidates for the mound and battery positions reported for the drill. This was the first step in getting the boys into shape for the season on Saturday, April 15, here, against Newburgh Free Academy. The schedule for the season is completed and was issued for publication by Coach Kins the other afternoon. There are a few open dates that may or may not be filled later.

Among the group that donned gloves and tossed the horseshoe, there was the veteran and best pitcher, the son of the late Johnny Cullen, lumbering up for a season that should hold plenty of work for him. And by his side appeared Paul Astalos, who for the past two years has been playing the outfield on the first string squad. Paul has always been a weakness for the mound and thinks now is the time to obey the impulse since there are so few dependable pitchers available. Perhaps he will be of greater service on this staff than anyone else.

A number of aspirants who have been playing for the past few years in grammar school were also bearing down on a few as they sent them into the catcher's mitt. There were Frank Colucci, J. Val and E. Book. It is his hope from the minors to the majors for these youngsters and the local coach is hoping to find a prodigy among them.

Johnny Cullen, Lefty Martin and Paul Astalos look like the best bets in filling the shoes of Willard Thomas, now at Springfield College. It is a mean problem to find a combination that will equal the Thomas and Rocca battery of last season.

Mahars Were in Earthquake Area

Mr. and Mrs. John E. Mahar of Hartford, Conn., former well-known residents of this city who are vacationing in Hollywood, Cal., have written to friends in this city of their experience in the recent earthquake. Mr. and Mrs. Mahar were preparing to leave their apartment for dinner when they seemed to be an explosion nearby rocked the building and upon the furnishings. Fearing it was an earthquake they immediately left the building and upon reaching the street witnessed the crumbling of many beautiful buildings and the arrival of the last fortunate residents. They then assisted in the relief work.

The Mahar's consider themselves very fortunate in not having extended their stay in Long Beach, which was the most severely damaged and where the loss of life was greatest. The day before the earthquake they visited friends in Long Beach. The home in which they visited was destroyed.

Mr. and Mrs. Mahar will remain in Hollywood for a time, expecting to be back in their Hartford home by April 5.

Schubert Choral Cluq Presents Operetta

The Schubert Choral Club gave a remarkable production of the charming operetta, "The Chimes of Normandy," at the Kingston High School on Monday evening. There was a large attendance. Miss Virginia Los Kamp was the music director and Paul Zucca's orchestra furnished the orchestral music. Mr. Howard Lewis had been able to furnish some very clever and pretty costume effects for the choruses and solo parts.

There was some very clever acting and good singing on the part of the following cast:

Serpolette, the good-for-nothing... Miss Gladys Hopper.
Germaine, the lost Marchioness... Miss Margaret Smith.
Gertrude, Jeanne, Manette, Suzanne, village maidens... Miss Gertrude DeWitt, Miss Helen Pratt, Miss Carolyn Port, Miss Ruth Neal.
Henri, Marquis of Cornville... Jean Grenichew, Scherman.
Robert H. Hawley.
Gaspard, a miser... Francis Phillips.
Registrar, Clifford Van Valkenburgh.
Assessor... Donald Clark.
Notary... Wallace Butler.

Special mention should be made of the delightful singing and acting of Miss Margaret Smith as the charming Germaine, and Miss Ruth Neal as the winsome Suzanne. Miss Gladys Hopper, as Serpolette, the good-for-nothing among the girls, was a snappy little actress and some of her singing was as good as her acting.

Francis Phillips did some excellent acting in the wicker role of "Gaspard, the miser," and his interpretation of the vocal part was good.

Robert H. Hawley gave life and humor to the performance as his dramatic and vocal presentation of Jean Grenichew, and Kenneth Newell took the long and difficult part of Henri, Marquis of Cornville, admirably. Had the ensemble and pitch of the choruses been better, the whole performance would have been more enjoyable.

The audience greatly enjoyed the solo dance given by Mrs. Lewis as a part of the grand finale.

Howe About:

Majority Rule Best
Clash Over Windows
Patriotism and Politics

By ED HOWE

ANYONE who reads a good deal of news has noted that the world's progress seems to have been a succession of great outrages, not one of which need have occurred had the people exercised their just right to majority rule. A handful of men were responsible for every great outrage in history; the prompt hanging of a few would have prevented the rivers of blood, the great famines and sufferings of which we hear so much.

I sincerely believe in majority rule. If a President orders us to take part in a foreign war a majority of us do not believe in it, it is our right to shake our fists under his nose and tell him we will not do it.

Once when traveling I visited a place where was exhibited millions of bones of children. Inquiry revealed that the bones were of children who had engaged in a children's crusade to rescue the holy sepulchre from infidels. Some foolish men recommended the crusade, and foolish parents responded. Instead of hanging the man who made the recommendation, it was one of the great horrors of history, and recollection of it has remained in my mind ever since.

I was reminded of it recently by seeing a recommendation of radicals that parents send their children this winter to march on Washington, and starve and suffer on the way, that something may be kept going on to advance the cause of human folly.

My favorite "notion" is that husbands and wives always clash over keeping windows up or down, and that it is the women who demand more fresh air than the men want. I heard two old people fussing about the subject lately, and the husband had moved to another part of the house, where he could arrange the windows to suit him. They didn't say much about the controversy in my presence, but acted as though a good deal had been said about it in private. On going out I met another old fellow, and told him about the incident, which I thought amusing. "My wife and I have had trouble about the same thing forty years," he said. The natural habits of men and women do not suit each other, and no one is to blame. The only remedy is for them to be as patient as they can. And if one does more than his fair and reasonable in exercising patience, there will be trouble; both men and women are very "touchy" about their rights.

There is lately appearing in print a summary of the pension scandal following the Civil war. At first the Grand Army of the Republic had only a total membership of twenty-seven thousand, but, as the pension bait was displayed by greedy agents, the number increased to 459,000. A man named George E. Lemon established the National Tribune to glorify the old soldier, and he once admitted to a house investigating committee that he had in his office 125,000 claims for pensions on which he hoped to collect a commission of $25 each. Thousands of these clients were bounty jumpers; there were many thousands of these in the war, and many of them were paid $700 each for enlisting when more timid men were drafted. Many of them were deserters—there were 125,000 deserters during the Civil war—who sold their services over and over. The politicians entered greedily into the movement as a means of securing Grand Army votes and soon it was a common saying the pension scandal was so rotten no editor or public man dared expose it.

The subject is of special interest now that veterans of the World war are beginning the same thing. And the fact that there are millions more of them renders the subject vastly more serious. Thousands of the more intelligent World war veterans themselves recognize this, and are openly opposing the scandal. I hope their influence will prevail; the people themselves are helpless in the presence of patriotism and politics.

There never was universal love; there never will be; it is doubtful if such a state would be desirable. Men hustling to do better than competitors they hate have done much more for the world than the great souls who dream of universal love.

It is possible to reduce one's philosophy of life to three words: Be a gentleman. Provocation is so frequently offered by the rude that a gentleman is occasionally required to fight; he must strike no foul blows.

Stephen Leacock, a noted man, writes: "Mark Twain had little school and no college. He thus acquired that peculiar sharpness of mind which comes from not going to school, and the power of independent thought obtained by not entering college." This reason has appeared before: H. G. Wells says that Genghis Kahn, who could not read, and who always lived half wild, was the greatest statesman and general who ever lived.

It is said quite generally the present depression is economic. It is really intellectual; the men have gone crazy. We should turn control of affairs over to the women and children; the men have failed.

Do With Little Water
The animals that live on the desert have developed a protective coloring to make them less conspicuous to their enemies. They have also learned to subsist on a very little water or to store it within their bodies. Some of them manage to get along without any direct water supply.

Flashes of Life
Sketched in Brief

By The Associated Press

New Castle, Pa.—If the Pied Piper ever gets around to New Castle and goes to work, he probably will find a cat among his followers.

Theresa lives in a feed store. A Herman J. Lettice of New York city, city employee who threw her a piece of bread was started a few minutes later by seeing the feline chasing one end of the crust and a rat eating the other end.

But it didn't surprise Jack White, caretaker at the city toll house next door.

"They play together," he said.

Sleep—Peaceful Sleep.

Chicago—Kenneth Walden, his wife Irene charged in a divorce bill, not only couldn't sleep himself for five years he made her get up and pace the floor with him. She estimated that by the time he allegedly deserted her in 1926 she had covered more ground than Burton Holmes.

Mrs. Walden lives in suburban River Forest. Her husband, she said, is in Long Beach, Calif.

And in Massachusetts.

Everett, Mass.—Police called to quell a family row last night were told by the wife that hostilities were due to her husband's desire to spend 25 cents of funds received from the welfare department for a new jig saw puzzle. He was persuaded to work on his old puzzle.

Asks Gold Rule Exemption.

Denver—Mrs. Amelia R. Hecht, widow, 74, has written President Roosevelt permission to keep a $1 gold piece she has had for 51 years. She doesn't want to be considered a gold hoarder.

The tiny coin, dated 1851, was found in 1882.

"Mr. President," her letter reads, "isn't there some way you can make an exception of my case? I thank you from the bottom of my heart for anything you can do for me in this matter."

Red Brewery Wagons.

Springfield, Mo.—The first shipment of several "beer wagons" stored away since adoption of the Volstead law, arrived here from the Anheuser-Busch Company in St. Louis and was sent to a carriage works, to be painted a bright red. The painter has promised to have the wagons ready by April 5.

Simplified Voting.

Picher, Okla.—Blank ballots awaited voters in the Picher city election today. The city didn't have enough money to have ballots printed so instead of "X" the voter must write the name of his choice.

Domesticity in Reverse.

Joliet, Ill.—Of interest to highly domesticated gentlemen is a ruling by Magistrate John J. Nicholson.

"A woman," said he, "can berate her husband for walking on scrubbed floors, but it's a wife's right and does not apply to husbands."

The court thereupon fined John De Pratt $3 for slapping his wife after she had walked across the kitchen floor which he had freshly scrubbed.

Pleistocene Collection.

The Los Angeles (Calif.) museum has the most complete representation of the skeletons of Pleistocene animals. The bones were recovered from the Rancho la Brea, within the city limits of Los Angeles. This asphalt pool is the greatest repository of prehistoric animal remains known to modern science.

HUDSON
ACTS!

Reduces Prices as much as $145 to invite immediate buying

We believe this is the time to make things happen.

That is why we have kept our employees at work, our factories running on their regular production and shipment schedule.

That is why—at the very beginning of the Spring Season—we reduced prices to the lowest point in our history.

When these prices were reduced, prices of raw materials were at rock-bottom.

We urge you to ask yourself whether action now—with a buying opportunity before you which may never come again—would not profit you more than a few days or weeks of delay.

You can trade in your old car today and drive away in a new Hudson Car or Essex Terraplane without a cent of cash-payment if the value of your old car equals the down-payment on your new one.

It can be repaired more cheaply now.

It's cheaper to make repairs when the damage is first done—for a simple repair neglected is usually the source of considerable expense in the end.

There is no better time than now. You profit by present low prices; you save the added expense of further damage; you create additional employment in your community.

Home repairs and improvements such as new roofs and sidewalks—extra rooms and other of the larger jobs can be paid for out of an ordinary income—a little each month—only a small down payment is required.
